Fed Hints Housing Is Too Hot

Economy on 'firm footing,' but real estate could cool

WASHINGTON | The sizzling housing market may be getting a bit too hot, Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan suggests.

Though the economy in general "seems to be on a reasonably firm footing," rapidly rising home prices in some areas do pose a risk to the housing boom, the Fed chief told Congress' Joint Economic Committee on Thursday.

Development of a national housing bubble, which could suddenly pop and send prices tumbling, doesn't appear likely, Greenspan said. But he said, "There do appear to be, at a minimum, signs of froth in some local markets where home prices seem to have risen to unsustainable levels."

Greenspan

Even if house prices were to decline in some locations, Greenspan indicated the national economy would probably weather it without a "substantial" impact.

Greenspan said the dramatic increase in interest-only mortgages and the introduction of relatively exotic forms of adjustable-rate mortgages are of concern, especially to the extent that they allow people to buy homes they otherwise would not be able to afford.

Greenspan didn't signal a shift in the Fed's campaign to tighten credit — as some analysts thought possible. Instead, he repeated Fed policymakers' stance that short-term interest rates can be raised at a pace that is likely to be "measured." JEANNINE AVERSA (AP)

MOBS | Cool It, Everybody When a Columbus, Ohio, firefighter Monday shut off a gushing hydrant used by residents to cool off, people soaked him with water guns and surrounded his pickup truck, banging on it with their hands. The firefighter — who arrived alone to close the hydrant — had to call police for help. "The firefighter was a little wet and a little upset," said police officer Matt Dunbar, who responded to the call for help. "But he was OK." A man who broke a mirror on the truck was charged. (AP) Eye Openers | Page 2

MARKETING

Tonight's Moon Made Possible by Nabisco

The Federal Aviation Administration officially banned "obtrusive" advertising in space last month. The move prohibits any ad in space that is visible from the Earth's without a telescope or similar device. Newsday reported. The new regulations are only codifying a ban Congress already enacted five years ago, FAA spokesman Henry Price. At that time, one had announced plans to launch a giant collapsible billboard that would unfold in space and orbit the planet, appearing in the sky at about the size of the moon. (EXPRESS)

The Tale of the Good, Litigious Samaritan

A Prestatyn, Wales, man who rescued a motorist trapped in a burning car is now suing him for $700,000, the Scotsman newspaper reported. In November 1996, Gordon Guthrie crashed his car into Gordon Sansbury's house. The vehicle burst into flames and, fighting through smoke and fumes, Sansbury freed a semi-conscious Guthrie from the burning car. Sansbury says the rescue caused him to develop chest infections and panic attacks and post-traumatic stress disorder. Guthrie's attorneys admitted their client's liability but claim the amount Sansbury wants is excessive. (EXPRESS)

CABBIES

Hail to the Thief

A crook in San Francisco isn't just stealing from cabbies — he's stealing the cabs. Six taxis from Yellow Cabs have been stolen in the past two weeks by someone who may have a master key, police said. The thief has been covering the in-car video camera and then picking up passengers, making money without paying the $95 daily gate fee to the company. "He knows what he is doing," said inspector Dean Marcic of the auto theft unit, adding, "maybe he can't get a license, maybe he lost it or can't afford it — this is how he's making his money." One recent theft took place near police headquarters; the cab was left abandoned. (AP)

Senate OKs Judicial Nominee Pryor

Lawmakers confirm last of Bush's most prized appellate picks

WASHINGTON | The GOP-controlled Senate on Thursday approved former Alabama Attorney General William Pryor and Michigan nominees David McKeague and Richard Griffin for seats on the U.S. Appeals Court, completing an unprecedented run of long-delayed judicial confirmations.

With a vote of 53-45, Pryor was approved for the 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, the Atlanta-based court that handles federal appeals from Alabama, Georgia and Florida. McKeague was confirmed 96-0 and Griffin 95-0, both for seats on the 6th Circuit Court of Appeals in Cincinnati.

Pryor

Bush gave Pryor a recess appointment in February 2004 after Democrats filibustered his confirmation. That appointment would have ended this year if Pryor had not been confirmed.

The Senate confirmed three of President Bush's most-wanted appellate nominees — Pryor, Janice Rogers Brown and Priscilla Owen — in less than three weeks after Senate centrists looking to avoid a partisan battle over judicial filibusters struck a deal. JESSE J. HOLLAND (AP)

Abuse Costs for Church Top $1B

Figure may keep rising as more victims' claims are processed in courts

NEW YORK | The cost to the U.S. Roman Catholic Church of sexual predators in the priesthood has climbed past $1 billion, according to tallies by American bishops and an Associated Press review of known settlements.

And the figure is guaranteed to rise, probably by tens of millions of dollars, because hundreds more claims are pending.

Dioceses around the United States have spent at least $1.06 billion on settlements with victims, verdicts, legal fees, counseling and other expenses since 1950, the AP found. A $120 million compensation fund announced last week by the Diocese of Covington, Ky., pushed the figure past the billion-dollar mark.

A large share of the costs — at least $378 million — were incurred in just the past three years, when the crisis erupted in the Boston Archdiocese and spread nationwide.

The Rev. Thomas Doyle, who left a promising career with the church to help represent victims, had warned the bishops in 1985 that abuse costs could eventually exceed $1 billion. "Nobody believed us," Doyle said.

Two boys protest over the church abuse scandal in Boston in April 2002.

Asked about the figure, a spokesman for the U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops, Monsignor Francis Maniscalco, said church leaders believe the payouts "should be just to all sides." He said victims deserve compensation, but the church must also have enough money to continue serving parishioners. (AP)

Bush: Patriot Act Makes U.S. Safer

President says parts of anti-terror act set to expire must be renewed

COLUMBUS, OHIO | President Bush, facing efforts by some in his own party to scale back the post-Sept. 11 Patriot Act, says it has made America safer and should be made permanent.

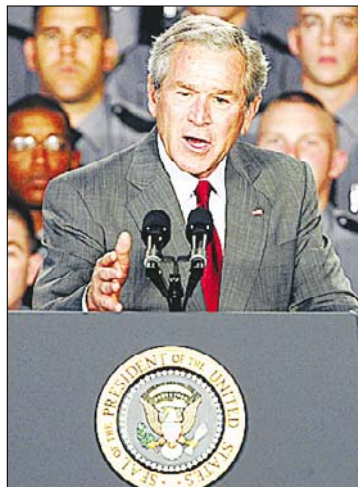

Lawmakers responded to the 2001 attacks by overwhelmingly approving the law 45 days later. It allowed expanded surveillance of terror suspects, increased use of material witness warrants to hold suspects incommunicado and permitted secret proceedings in immigration cases.

Now, more than a dozen provisions are set to expire. Those provisions, among other things, provide authority for nationwide search warrants, enable the FBI and intelligence agencies to share information about terrorism cases and gave the FBI the power to obtain records from entities such as libraries.

During Bush's 2004 re-election campaign, he made preserving the law a refrain, but he has rarely spoken of it since.

"My message to Congress is clear: Terrorist threats against us will not expire at the end of the year and neither should the protections of the Patriot Act," Bush told more than 100 law enforcement officers Thursday.

President Bush talks about the Patriot Act in Columbus, Ohio, on Thursday.

The president credited the law with helping to bring federal charges against more than 400 suspects — more than half of whom have been convicted — and to break up terror cells.

He spoke at the Ohio Patrol Training Academy to highlight the case of a Columbus man, Iyman Faris, who was accused of plotting attacks on a New York bridge and a Midwest shopping mall but was tracked down with the help of the Patriot Act. JENNIFER LOVEN (AP)

'Babyface' Looks Don't Help on Campaign Trail

WASHINGTON | "Babyface" is ideal for cooing infants, or even as a nickname. In politicians, though, it's often a losing look.

Scientists have found that voters frequently pick the candidates with more mature looks, exuding competence, over those who have certain features — round face, big eyes — in other words, a babyface.

Every election, campaigns spend millions on advertising that features photographs of smiling candidates. A study in Friday's issue of the journal Science suggests that if the politician has cheeks worth pinching, the effort may be a lost cause.

The scientists found that a quick look at a candidate's photograph created an impression that often lasted through the more deliberative process that helps a voter decide.

Competence was an overriding trait, and the politician perceived that way, even based only on looks, left a lasting impression.

"[S]uperficial appearance qualities such as babyfacedness profoundly affect human behavior in the blink of an eye," researchers wrote in an analysis of the study.

Rumsfeld Hints at Plan for Detainees

BRUSSELS, BELGIUM | The United States would rather have detainees at the Guantanamo Bay prison camp imprisoned by their home countries, Defense Secretary Donald H. Rumsfeld said Thursday.

Rumsfeld spoke a day after saying he was unaware of anyone in the Bush administration discussing closing the prison. Hours later, President Bush refused to rule out shutting the facility, saying he was "exploring all alternatives" for detaining the prisoners.

U.S. officials are waiting until Iraqi and Afghan authorities have the ability to deal with the prisoners before handing over detainees from those nations, Rumsfeld said Thursday at a news conference during a NATO meeting.

"Our desire is not to have these people. ... Our goal is to have them in the hands of the countries of origin, for the most part," Rumsfeld said. (AP)

Sunnis Win Big Promise

Offer of greater voice in writing of Iraq's landmark constitution

BAGHDAD | Iraq's president averted a crisis Thursday by promising Sunni Arabs a big say in drafting the constitution — clearing the way for them to join a Shiite-dominated panel now working around the clock in a cavernous, dusty auditorium.

Iraq's 275-seat parliament has until August to adopt a new constitution. The document will face a nationwide vote two months later. If adopted, it will provide the basis for a new election by December.

President Jalal Talabani, a Sunni Kurd, responded Thursday to threats by Sunni Arabs to boycott the process unless they were given more committee seats, and unless their members were allowed to vote.

"We have decided to add about 20 to 25 members from Sunnis in the committee, which will draft the constitution with full rights like other members who were elected by the parliament," Talabani said after meeting British Foreign Secretary Jack Straw.

The latest move to lure the reluctant Sunni Arab minority into the political process came amid reports that the Iraqi government and U.S. Embassy were both engaged in backchannel negotiations designed to get the Sunni-dominated insurgents involved in the political process. HAMZA HENDAWI (AP)

Bolivian Military Poised to Intervene

Clashes grow more violent, claiming 1st victim

LA PAZ, BOLIVIA | The chief of Bolivia's armed forces threatened to intervene Thursday as protests spread over the prospect that Congress would name the conservative Senate leader as president.

Lawmakers were to hold a special session in Sucre, 450 miles southeast of La Paz, to elevate the Senate leader to the presidency. The lawmakers moved their session from La Paz to Sucre to avoid the protests that have effectively shut the capital.

But the protesters who forced President Carlos Mesa to offer his resignation on Monday took to the streets again in Sucre, vowing to drive out his replacement. Thousands of miners clashed with riot police outside the hall where Congress was to meet. Lawmakers suspended the session.

The weeks-old crisis registered its first death when the miners' leader was killed. The miners said he was shot as their caravan approached soldiers on a highway. The government confirmed the death but said the circumstances were under investigation.

If congress ultimately accepts the resignation of Mesa, the constitution gives the job to Senate leader Hormando Vaca Diez. But leftist leaders said unless Vaca Diez steps down and calls early elections, they would drive the "mafia of the oligarchy" from power. BILL CORMIER (AP)

Citing Serbs' Cooperation, U.S. Lifts Freeze on $10M

BELGRADE, SERBIA-MONTENEGRO | The United States on Thursday lifted its freeze on a $10 million aid package for Serbia-Montenegro, saying the Balkan country had shown better cooperation with the U.N. war crimes tribunal.

Congress in January withheld $10 million in aid because of Serbia's failure to arrest and extradite Serb suspects to the tribunal.

But since October, Serbia negotiated the surrender of about a dozen Serb war crimes suspects. "Because of this progress ... the United States as of today is announcing the resumption of economic aid," Undersecretary of State Nicholas Burns.

Still, former Bosnian Serb military commander Ratko Mladic, believed hiding in Serbia, and wartime leader Radovan Karadzic, believed to be in Bosnia, remain at large.

"It's our very strong hope that Mladic will be sent to The Hague and put on trial for war crimes he was accused of," Burns said. "We hope his days in relative freedom are numbered." (AP)

Ruling Raps Canadian Care

High court says state's monopoly on health services threatens lives

TORONTO | Canada's Supreme Court dealt a powerful blow to the state monopoly on health care Thursday, striking down a Quebec ban on private health insurance for services provided under the country's Medicare system of universal coverage.

Although the unanimous ruling applies only to Quebec, it is sure to bring similar cases in other Canadian provinces and give impetus to a growing movement pushing for public and private care.

In recent years, Medicare has been plagued by long waiting lists and a lack of doctors, nurses and equipment. Some patients wait months for surgery, MRI machines are scarce and many Canadians travel to the U.S. for treatment.

The Supreme Court said Quebec's prohibition violated the province's charter of rights by threatening the lives of patients, and the justices noted other countries have successfully combined private and public care.

But government leaders defend the current system, and Medicare supporters voiced fears the ruling will bring a two-tiered system favoring those with money and possibly hurting care for the poor.

Prime Minister Paul Martin insisted private health care is not the solution to Medicare's problems. "We are not going to have a two-tiered health care system in this country. Nobody wants that," he said. "What we want to do is to strengthen the public health care system."

Canadians support the system despite the high taxes needed to finance health care, seeing it as a marker of egalitarianism and independent identity that sets their country apart from the United States, where some 45 million Americans lack health insurance. BETH DUFF-BROWN (AP)

Marshal Guilty Of Manslaughter

Jury acquits Lloyd of murder in shooting of Navy seaman in Md.

ROCKVILLE, MD. | A former deputy U.S. Marshal faces up to 35 years in prison after a Montgomery County jury convicted him Thursday of manslaughter and other charges in the death of a young Navy seaman.

Less than two hours after telling the judge they were deadlocked — then being ordered to continue deliberating — jurors acquitted Arthur Lloyd, 54, of first- and second-degree murder. The nine women and three men instead announced a guilty verdict for manslaughter, reckless endangerment and handgun charges in the Oct. 28 shooting of Ryan T. Stowers. They deliberated just under 21 hours over three days.

Lloyd looked down, his relatives cried, and one left the courtroom in anger after the verdict was read. Others reacted with disbelief.

"I have never seen a law enforcement officer treated this way," said Matthew Fogg, who worked with Lloyd in the U.S. Marshals Service.

Montgomery County Circuit Court Judge Ann S. Harrington ordered Lloyd held without bond, and scheduled sentencing for July 26. Prosecutors said Lloyd will serve at least five years because of a mandatory minimum sentence for the charge of using a handgun in a crime. BRETT ZONGKER (AP)

Committee OKs New Metro Budget

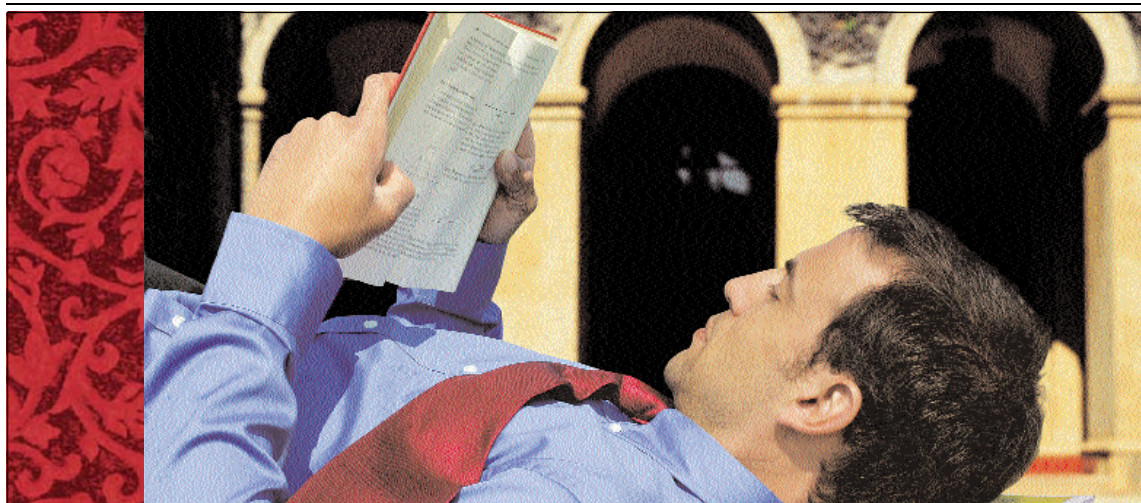

WASHINGTON | Metro's Budget Committee approved its largest spending package ever on Thursday, but the $1.5 billion measure could face a tough debate next week when it goes to the full board.

Representatives for Montgomery and Prince George's counties voted against the budget, surprising their committee colleagues from other jurisdictions.

"Maryland views the subsidies in this budget as unsustainable," Montgomery's Robert J. Smith said. "This has got to be corrected."

Metro's operating budget includes an 8 percent increase in funds paid by local governments, bringing the total for next fiscal year to $434 million.

The subsidy hike means Metro can avoid increasing fares to cover rising costs. (AP)

Mortgage Rates Fall Again

Ninth drop in 10 weeks brings 30-year rates to lowest point since 2004

WASHINGTON | Rates on 30-year mortgages fell again this week, dropping to the lowest point since the spring of 2004, according to a nationwide survey.

The mortgage company Freddie Mac said Thursday its weekly survey showed that rates on 30-year, fixed-rate mortgages averaged 5.56 percent, compared with 5.62 percent last week.

The ninth decline in the past 10 weeks pushed rates to the lowest level since they averaged 5.52 percent the week of April 1, 2004.

The steady decline over the past two months helped sales of new and existing homes set records in April. Analysts predicted further strong sales in May.

The most recent drop in rates was attributed to the weaker-than-expected jobs report last week. It showed that businesses added just 78,000 workers to their payrolls, the poorest showing in nearly two years.

"The May employment report came in at less than half of what was expected last month, which pushed bond yields — and mortgage rates — down further," said Frank Nothaft, chief economist at Freddie Mac.

Nothaft said the continued declines in mortgage rates had caused him to lower his forecast for where rates will be at year's end. He said he expected 30-year mortgages to end up at between 5.9 percent and 6.2 percent, compared with his earlier prediction of 6.5 percent. (AP)

Global Economy Yields
600K New Millionaires

NEW YORK | A strong global economy gave 600,000 people an entree last year into a highly envied group: the world's millionaires.

The annual World Wealth Report, released Thursday by Merrill Lynch & Co. Inc. and the Capgemini Group consulting firm, found that there were 8.3 million people worldwide with $1 million or more in financial assets at the end of 2004, up from 7.7 million a year earlier.

Their total wealth rose 8.2 percent to $30.8 trillion in 2004, giving them control of nearly a quarter of the world's financial assets, according to Capgemini's Petrina Dolby.

The 8.2 percent increase was the strongest since an identical 8.2 percent rise in 1999, she said.

The expansion of the millionaire class was especially strong in North America because of the solid economic growth last year in both the United States and Canada. (AP)

Fewer Seeking
Jobless Benefits

WASHINGTON | The number of people filing new claims for unemployment benefits fell by 21,000 last week, the biggest decline in seven weeks, the government reported Thursday.

The Labor Department said 330,000 newly laid-off workers filed benefit claims last week after a surge of 27,000 new claims the previous week, which had been the biggest one-week jump since early 2004.

Labor Department analysts attributed the improvement in part to fewer layoffs in the auto industry. (AP)

Easy Does It

Globe-trotting golfer Els returns to site of major triumph for Booz Allen

GOLF | The life of a professional golfer beckons one on a rigorous schedule across a variety of venues, but perhaps none more so than Ernie Els.

One of the world's top golfers, Els has made a name for himself on more than one continent. From Europe, Africa, Asia and the United States, he has come, seen and conquered. His career wins include three majors, 11 PGA events and 45 various international tournaments.

"World-wide golf, I guess you could say that is my brand of play," explained Els, shortly after arriving at Congressional Country Club for this weekend's Booz Allen Classic.

As the TPC at Avenel undergoes some reconstruction, many of the Booz Allen's participants are eager to face the Blue Course at Congressional, but Els may know its nuances better than most.

In 1997, "The Big Easy," as he is known, won his second U.S. Open title here in heart-stopping fashion. He had been neck and neck with Colin Montgomerie, Tom Lehman and Jeff Maggert on the back nine, when it came down to a nail-biter between him and Montgomerie on the 18th. While Montgomerie bogeyed the three-par final hole, Els parred and walked away with the one-stroke win.

"I certainly recall those last shots made down the stretch," he said, almost with relief as though reliving the event. "It had been a brutal day for all four of us, and there was so much emotion in that last putt."

Just moments before an afternoon press conference and practice round on Tuesday, Els could be heard speaking on his cell phone with family. He keeps homes in Florida, South Africa and Great Britain and is committed to never being away from his family for more than two weeks at a time. His wife and two children will arrive stateside this week to join him at Pinehurst for the U.S. Open.

"It's great to be back here. We've made a lot of friends here," said Els, who has yet to garner a PGA win this year. "I hope I can put it all together here." TRISSY NEALE

HOW THE FIELD FARED

→ The first off the tee yesterday, 34-year-old Matt Gogel started the day off right, shooting an 8-under 63 that broke the course record.

→ Defending Booz Allen champion Adam Scott posted a 2-under 69, good enough for 24th place.

→ Els was at 2-under through 17 before stopping early for lightning.

→ In the middle of the pack was Vijay Singh, the No. 1 player in the world, who was even.

TV Lineup

→ BOOZING: The Booz Allen Classic continues at Congressional all weekend (Friday at 4 p.m. on USA, Saturday and Sunday at 3 p.m. on ABC).

→ PLAY ON: D.C. United takes a break from its usual Saturday games to play the MetroStars Sunday (6 p.m. on Comcast).

→ SMOKING: The red-hot Nationals, sparked by Ryan Church, take on the Seattle Mariners, this weekend (Friday at 7 p.m., Saturday at 7 p.m. and Sunday at 1 p.m.; all on UPN 20).

Ryan Church had four hits and three RBIs in the Nationals' win Wednesday.

→ KNUCKLE SANDWICH: Can't get a ticket to watch Mike Tyson? Buy the event on TV — it costs almost what a ticket should (Saturday at 9 p.m. on Pay Per View, $50).

→ HORSING AROUND: There won't be a Triple Crown winner at the Belmont Stakes on Saturday (5:30 p.m. on NBC).

→ GAME TWO: The NBA finals resume with the Pistons taking on the Spurs on Sunday (9 p.m. on ABC).

→ FULL OVAL: NASCAR's drivers take part in the Pocono 500 on Sunday (1 p.m. on Fox) in Long Pond, Pa.

→ REDS: The Orioles, who can't buy a win in interleague play, take on the Cincinnati Reds on Friday (7 p.m. on Comcast). Check local listings for Saturday and Sunday games.

BASEBALL | Haunted Houses For the first time since the 1918 World Series, baseball's two most famously cursed teams — the Boston Red Sox and the Chicago Cubs — will meet. The Cubs haven't won a World Series since 1908, and the Sox have been dormant since, well, last year's World Series title — when they defeated "The Curse of Bambino" and the St. Louis Cardinals. "It's like a badge of honor that you never won, sort of," said Dennis Eckersley, who played for both the Red Sox and Cubs before winning a title in Oakland. (EXPRESS/AP)

Major Task for Sorenstam

Dominant golfer eyes second piece of what may be a Grand Slam

WOMEN'S GOLF | A dozen or so fans chased after a cart that whisked Annika Sorenstam away from the 18th green at Bulle Rock on a steamy Tuesday, thrusting flags and caps for her sign. She is the center of attention wherever she goes, even if it might take her awhile to figure out where she is.

Sorenstam won the LPGA

Annika Sorenstam is in second place at the LPGA Championship after one round.

Championship the last two years about 40 miles up the road at DuPont Country Club, but the environment is much different this time.

Gone are the tree-lined fairways of DuPont, not to mention the inflatable Ronald McDonald atop the clubhouse. Bulle Rock in Havre de Grace, Md., is a course that asks players to navigate from Point A to Point B, with fairways framed by rough that covers the shoes and greens that break fast and sharp around the cup.

"You've really got to be able to control the ball this week. That's the key," Sorenstam said. "It's a true course for a major championship, I think. You have got to have all your game here."

The McDonald's LPGA Championship, which began Thursday with Sorenstam shooting a 4-under 68, is the second stop on what she hopes will make her the first person to win the professional Grand Slam in one calendar year.

"I don't walk around every day saying, 'I want to win the Grand Slam,'" Sorenstam said. "I know it, and I'm going to try to do the best I can and prepare as much as I can."

United Remains Stingy

As offense struggles to find scoring touch, defense carries D.C.

UNITED | This could not have been how D.C. United pictured the first third of the 2005 season. As the 3-4-3 team heads to East Rutherford, N.J., to play the MetroStars on Sunday evening, not a single one of its celebrated attacking stars is featured on the league's list of scoring leaders. The offense is ranked eighth of 12 teams, with no obvious fix in sight.

Meantime, a patchwork defense that many thought would be unable to maintain its championship level has found a way to keep United in games, surviving injuries, inexperience and the departures of Ryan Nelsen and Mike Petke to stand fourth-best in MLS. It has yielded just two goals in five road games.

The back three and goalkeeper Nick Rimando face another hurdle on Sunday, when the dependable Bryan Namoff may be sidelined with a hip injury.

"This is just the way a season goes sometimes. You get injuries and all sorts of things come into play," said Brandon Prideaux, who, at 28, is the dean of United's defense.

At 28 years old, Brandon Prideaux is the oldest defender on D.C. United.

United has relied on undrafted rookie Bobby Boswell to man the middle and has used five players on the outside, yet has managed to keep the workload relatively light for Rimando compared to other MLS 'keepers.

While the sluggish offense makes the performance in back all the more important, Prideaux said that he wasn't sure that the addition of an Argentine defender, rumored to take place in August, was required.

"I don't know if it's necessary," he said. "We're doing all right."

BACK TO SCHOOL: Illinois guard Dee Brown broke his right foot at an NBA pre-draft camp and might withdraw from the June 28 draft. He is expected to be sidelined six to eight weeks. NATIONALS | BY MATT SWENSON

Anthem Cheer For the Birds

NATIONALS FANS, we have a crisis — and it has nothing to do with the team, which continues to amaze with its unlikely success.

No, the problem begins before the game starts every night; specifically, late in the National Anthem.

Instead of being content to silently stand as the singer du jour croons “O say, does that star-spangled banner ...,” hundreds of fans loudly insist the lyrics start “O’s say.”

Where are we, Hell? Or worse, Baltimore?

Just as the Orioles are not D.C.’s team, their fans’ tradition has no place here.

For the out-of-towners out there, the “O’s” refers to the Orioles, whose fans started yelling that in the midst of “The Star Spangled Banner” long enough ago that it’s just common practice now.

It’s all well and good to still be an Orioles fan in this age of Nationals baseball, but do Washingtonians have to suffer through the same desecration of the National Anthem seen every game day at Camden Yards?

Whether or not the “O’s” chant is appropriate at all during the anthem is irrelevant right now. Baltimoreans like it, so good for them.

But just as the Orioles are not Washington’s team, their fans’ tradition has no place here.

Granted, there may be some guilty parties who just don’t know what they’re doing. For those poor souls who proudly cheer “O’s” at the Nats game, there are doctors who can treat the illness.

As for Nats fans, stand your ground. We’re two months into this season, and there’s no need to be polite any longer. Act now, or forever stand in silence.

“O’s say?” Oh, please is more like it.

Matt Swenson, a lifelong Washingtonian, is the sports editor of Express.

Proving Ground

With McBride fight, Tyson has another shot to show he’s still got it

BOXING | One might think that, after dropping two of his last three fights and winning only five of his last nine fights that ended in a decision, Mike Tyson wants to show the world he hasn’t yet peaked as a boxer. But, at age 38, Tyson says he doesn’t need to convince people he’s still a threat.

“I have nothing to prove to anybody,” he said at a press conference Wednesday.

“Iron” Mike Tyson (50-5-0) makes his first appearance in a Washington boxing ring Saturday night, and his attitude is in sharp contrast to that of opponent Kevin “The Clones Colossus” McBride (32-4-1), who, despite winning his last seven fights and holding the IBC Americans Heavyweight title, told reporters Wednesday that “fighting Mike Tyson is a dream come true.”

McBride and fans alike may be wondering what Mike Tyson they’re getting.

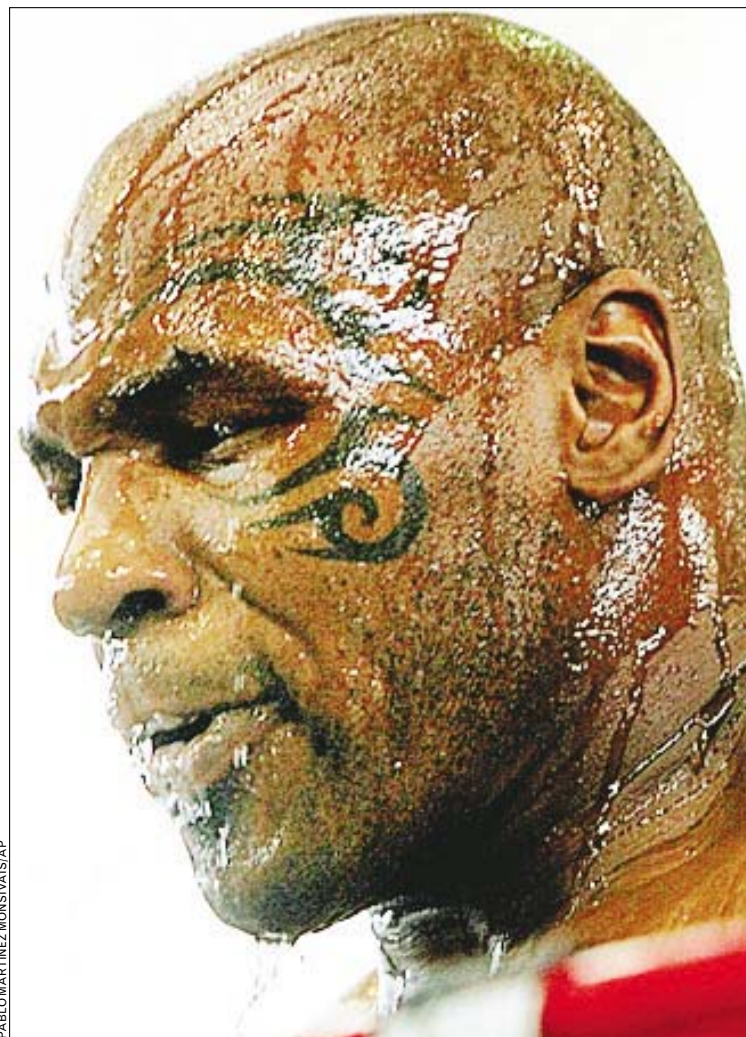

Is it the boxer who can back up the tough-talk statements — “I’m going to gut him like a fish,” Tyson said of Saturday’s fight — and still has enough for a dominating first-round knockout, as he did against Clifford Etienne two years ago?

Or is it the boxer who, after his boasting, ends up battered on the mat, as in the beating handed to him by Danny Williams last year?

McBride and Williams pose similar weight advantages — both are the only Tyson opponents to weigh over 260 pounds — but McBride (271 lbs.) is bigger than simply the 38 extra pounds; at 6 feet, 6 inches tall, he’s got 7 inches on Tyson and 11 inches more reach.

That mismatch in size gives McBride room for trash talk of his own.

“When I hit ‘Iron’ Mike Tyson on the chin, he’s going to think Ireland, as the whole island, hit him on the chin,” the Irish boxer said.

PABLO MARTINEZ MONSIVAI/AP

SHOW MAN: Despite his recent record, Mike Tyson still oozes confidence about his boxing ability. “I’m going to give you a great show,” he said this week in D.C.

Of course, Tyson has been taking down larger opponents for years. If he still has the skills and endurance that, in the past, allowed him to deliver such quick punishment to bigger boxers, there is no good reason for him to sound like an underdog.

“I’m going to give you a great show on Saturday night,” Tyson said. “This is my show.”

She’s a Heartbreaker

Laila Ali loves to talk a big game — and then back it up in the ring

BOXING | Can anyone stop Laila Ali? She doesn’t think so.

The boxer has every reason to be brash about her first-ever fight in Washington, at the MCI Center on Saturday. Ranked No. 1, the undefeated Ali — yes, for those out of touch with women’s boxing, she is the daughter of legend Muhammad Ali — has turned from a potential novelty act to the most dominant figure in women’s boxing. And, she said, she’s not about to let “Irish”

JONATHAN NEWTON/UTP

Laila Ali will fight Erin Toughill at the MCI Center in D.C. on Saturday night.

Erin Toughill change that.

“I have a lot of experience with these chicks who think they can just walk up and take what I have,” Ali said at a press conference Wednesday. “The bottom line is that I’ve never lost a fight.”

For Toughill, the chance to prove herself against the best has been a long time coming. The chance to deal Ali (20-0-0) that first ‘L’ is “what I’ve been training for my whole life,” Toughill said Wednesday.

Ali said she’s going to prove that’s just been wasted time. “When you actually get to break someone’s heart, it makes it all the more better,” Ali said. CHRIS MINCHER (EXPRESS)

Nats’ Byrd Draws Suspension After Running Into Ump

NATIONALS | Outfielder Marlon Byrd was suspended for two games and fined an undisclosed amount by Major League Baseball Thursday for his run-in with an umpire.

Byrd’s agents have told the players’ association that he will appeal.

Byrd knocked down umpire Joe Brinkman during an argument with another umpire during Washington’s 7-3 victory over the Florida Marlins on June 4.

Manager Frank Robinson said last week that he didn’t expect a long suspension for Byrd. (AP)

Tim Dunkin'

Gifted Spurs forward, former MVP is looking for his 3rd NBA title

NBA FINALS | On a fundamentally flawless summer day in 1997, Tim Duncan and Gregg Popovich reclined on the white sands of St. Croix to discuss life, basketball and their future together.

Neither the inexperienced coach nor his new No. 1 draft pick dared to imagine their next eight years in San Antonio would include MVP awards for Duncan, widespread acclaim for Popovich and two championships with an imminent chance for a third in this season's NBA Finals, beginning with Thursday's Game 1.

Duncan — with his once-in-a-generation combination of skill, athleticism, work ethic and genuine decency — immediately turned the Spurs into contenders and, in 1999, champions.

The Detroit Pistons are the only remaining obstacle to The Big Fundamental's latest addition to a resume that could someday distinguish him as the greatest power forward in NBA history.

But such heights were far from his mind during his meeting with Popovich, who had gone 17-47 after replacing Bob Hill midway through the 1996-97 season. Popovich and the Spurs desperately needed Duncan to be their savior, and the genial Wake Forest star didn't plan to disappoint.

"I honestly didn't know what to expect," Duncan said Wednesday. "I knew I had a great opportunity to learn with David [Robinson]. I had no idea that, at this point in my career, I would have an opportunity to try for a third championship."

These finals are a critical point in Duncan's career for another reason: He is trying for his first championship without Robinson and his able leadership by his side.

"Every year, he's taken on more responsibility — talking to people, letting people know what he's feeling and what we need to do, just steadily," Popovich said. "It's been a couple of years since David's been gone, and he's gotten really good at it." GREG BEACHAM (AP)

SHE'S A STAR: Danica Patrick was on a whirlwind media tour after the Indy 500.

Patrick Returns To Track

AUTO RACING | Danica Patrick has enjoyed the past few weeks of celebrity.

But enough is enough.

"Now, it's time to go do some racing," Patrick said earlier this week as she began to prepare herself mentally to race Saturday night at Texas Motor Speedway, her first event since capturing the imagination of millions of race fans with a stirring fourth-place finish in the Indianapolis 500.

Since then, it's been a mad whirl of TV appearances, interviews and even a cover story in Sports Illustrated.

It's the first time the weekly sports magazine has devoted a cover to the Indy 500 since 1985, the week after Danny Sullivan spun and still went on to win.

It hasn't left Patrick a lot of time for her daily workouts or room to spend time recuperating from the three weeks of intense scrutiny at Indy. But she views her crazy schedule as a way to help the IRL gain some momentum in its uphill battle for new fans, TV ratings and sponsors.

"Yeah," she said, "at times, you just want to say, 'No, I don't feel like doing that.' But I feel like it's my job as a driver in the series to promote it, to make sure that we all have sponsors for a long time, that we all have jobs for a long time and the series keeps getting bigger, because everybody wins when that happens." MIKE HARRIS (AP)

Redskins Penalized

REDSKINS | The NFL has docked the Washington Redskins three days of offseason practices for conducting workouts that were too physical.

The team will lose its "organized team activities" scheduled for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. In addition, there can be no player meetings or conditioning sessions at Redskins Park from Friday through Wednesday.

Coach Joe Gibbs also reported a breakthrough of sorts: He finally has heard from Sean Taylor.

After months of refusing to return the coach's phone calls, Taylor spoke to Gibbs by phone on Wednesday with help from Taylor's agent, Drew Rosenhaus. Taylor had been the only unexcused absence from the offseason workouts. He's been told to stay away from Redskins Park following an arrest on a felony charge in Florida. (AP)

Undercover Angels

'Brangelina' is a mystery wrapped in two really hot bodies

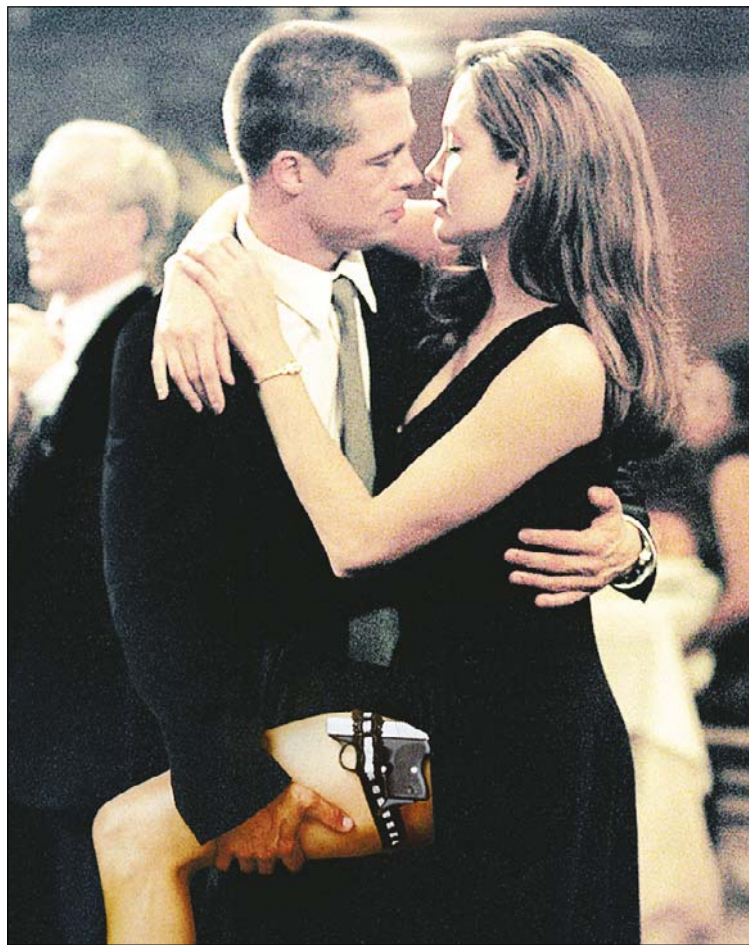

FILM | If Brad Pitt and Angelina Jolie have indeed become an off-screen couple, who could blame them?

After watching "Mr. and Mrs. Smith," it would seem physically impossible for any human being with a pulse to resist falling in love with either or both of them.

These people are frighteningly beautiful individually and have insane amounts of combustible chemistry together. They could have sat there and read the phone book and it would have looked hot — especially in the warm, sensuous tones of director Doug Liman's film.

But they don't just sit there. They fire an arsenal of high-powered weapons, fling a variety of knives and other sharp objects and blow stuff up real good.

"Mr. and Mrs. Smith" isn't just a romance, and it isn't just a comedy. It's a big, mindless action movie, so checking your brain at the multiplex door is a good idea.

John and Jane Smith live an antiseptic life with a beautiful home, two cars and no sex. She wears a frumpy apron to cook dinner; he comes home, pulls on a cardigan and fixes himself a drink. They engage in distracted discourse over the new curtains.

Sometimes, though, they sneak out at night. Jane puts on a dominatrix get-up and heads into Manhattan to snap her latest victim's neck. John weasels his way into a back-room poker game and fires off a few rounds to fulfill his mission.

It's only when both are assigned the same target (Adam Brody from "The O.C.") do they each realize whom they've been lying next to in bed every night. That sets up the film's subtlest, most suspenseful scene and forces each Smith to try and bump off the other.

But to address the question, "Can you actually see Brad and Angelina falling in love on screen?" the answer is: It's hard to tell amid all the noise and destruction. It's fun trying, though.

What are the start and end times for the Friday jazz performances at the Sculpture Garden?

Generally 5 to 8 p.m., but they may not start or stop on the dot. The Sculpture Garden is open until 9 p.m. on concert nights.

National Gallery of Art, 700 Constitution Ave. NW.

Where can I find a good cup of tea, served in proper china?

Head up to Royal Tea Room in La Plata. If you're willing to spend some bucks, hotels such as the Willard, the Four Seasons and the Mandarin Oriental have proper teas.

Royal Tea Room, 110 E. Charles St., La Plata, 301-392-1111; Willard, 1401 Pennsylvania Ave. NW; 202-628-9100; Mandarin Oriental 1330 Maryland Ave. SW, 202-787-6868; Four Seasons, 2800 Pennsylvania Ave. NW, 202-342-0444.

La Plata's Royal Tea Room takes a Old Europe approach to classic teas.

Hayao Miyazaki's elaborate anime fantasies are more than screen cartoons.

Anime's Indelible Ink

'Howl's Moving Castle' takes the fairy tale new places

FILM | It's true that Disney-Pixar has helped choke off hand-drawn animation in favor of the computer-generated variety. But the two outfits have preserved traditional animation with translations of films from Japanese anime master Hayao Miyazaki ("Spirited Away").

Miyazaki's "Howl's Moving Castle" is a strange delight awash in visual splendor, understated humor and clever transmogrifications among its bonny band of weirdos.

On the surface, it's a straightforward quest by a girl to undo a spell. But on deeper levels it's a richly layered reflection on unreasoning patriotism, war for war's sake and technology versus nature.

Young Sophie (Emily Mortimer) is secretly a romantic soul, even though she toils dutifully in her late father's hat shop.

An exhilarating encounter with studly wizard Howl (Christian Bale) brings Sophie to the attention of the Witch of the Waste (Lauren Bacall), who transforms the girl into a crone.

The aged Sophie (Jean Simmons) sets off to break the curse. She stumbles onto Howl's strange mobile household, a walking contraption of gears, pulleys and apertures. The plot turns curiously as Sophie uncovers secrets from virtually everyone's past, witnesses mass destruction and becomes Howl's unlikely savior.

Disney and Pixar, while focusing their future on the digital world, clearly recognize the artistry of a master who refuses to let go of animation's glorious pen-and-ink past. DAVID GERMAIN (AP)

Have you heard about the new seafood restaurant in Clarendon, Clare & Don's Beach Shack?

Yes. They have a great happy hour with $4 frozen drinks and wing specials. As for the menu, they offer several different types of fish prepped your way, fish and chips, crab cakes and some veggie options. It's a good seafood spot for the area.

3 Degrees of Cheesy

A 7-year-old child could have written 'Sharkboy' — and did

FILM | Robert Rodriguez has proved himself as a filmmaker of infinite resourcefulness, serving as director, writer, cinematographer, editor, visual effects supervisor and sometimes even composing the score.

But with "The Adventures of Sharkboy and Lavagirl in 3-D," he confirms what he cannot do: come up with a single original idea.

"Sharkboy and Lavagirl" reportedly sprang from the mind of the director's 7-year-old son, who is credited with having written the script after imagining and drawing these characters.

No offense to the kid, but it shows. The story is incoherent and painfully repetitive, and in Dad's hands, the movie has the chintzy look of a Saturday afternoon sci-fi flick.

The 3-D segments aren't exactly aesthetically gripping — characters throw up and the chunks fly out from the screen, and the scenes all have a joyless, grayish tint.

Pity, since our young hero, Max (Cayden Boyd), is supposedly so colorfully imaginative that his daydreams get him in trouble at school.

Max writes in his dream journal about Sharkboy (Taylor Lautner), a boy who was raised underwater by sharks and has fins, and Lavagirl (Taylor Dooley), who has hot-pink hair and shoots flames from her hands. They live on the Planet Drool, where kids ride the Train of Thought to the Land of Milk and Cookies — small children will like this part, actually.

He has fins, she shoots flames and together they'll save Planet Drool.

Planet Drool is under the tyrannical reign of Mr. Electric and Minus, so Sharkboy and Lavagirl recruit Max to help them ... do something. Whatever the threat is, Max needs to prevent it by dreaming, something he's goaded into doing ad nauseam.

"The dream! Remember the dream!" Lavagirl urges. Variations on this theme include "Learn to dream with your eyes open" and "Dream a better dream."

That's advice Rodriguez should follow, too.

DECADES GONE BY: Alessio Boni plays one of the central siblings in Marco Tullio Giordana's epic, "The Best of Youth."

Movies Now Playing

BECAUSE OF WINN-DIXIE (PG, 105 minutes) Friendless, isolated Opal (AnnaSophia Robb), new to a small Southern town with her preacher father, meets Winn-Dixie, a scruffy, huggable dog that she names after the grocery chain when she finds him running amok. The film chronicles the summer when Opal and Winn-Dixie cobble together a quirky community of friends. "Winn-Dixie" is that rare youngsters' movie in which the happy ending is hard-won, and that much more triumphant when it comes. (AH)

THE BEST OF YOUTH (R, 366, in two parts) Covering almost 40 years, this saga from director Marco Tullio Giordana follows Italian brothers Nicola (Luigi Lo Cascio) and Matteo (Alessio Boni) through career changes, travels, romantic entanglements and emotional upheavals, all against a backdrop of recent Italian history. But it's so much more than one of those nostalgic miniseries about a bygone era. "The Best of Youth" gets beneath the embarrassing hairstyles, retro fashions and soundtrack oldies to tell the story of a family that feels universal and timeless. (MO)

BORN INTO BROTHELS (unrated, 85 minutes) British photographer Zana Briski comes to Sonagachi, the red-light district of Calcutta, and teaches photography to the children of prostitutes. As these boys and girls learn how to frame pictures, lead film and accept Briski's techniques, they also learn to see their world differently. The movie is really about changing the perspectives of eight children in a hopeless world. (PT)

BROTHERS (R, 110 minutes) Danish director Susanne Bier's biblically charged, absorbing drama is about two brothers whose lifelong rivalry explodes when the oldest, Michael Lundberg (Ulrich Thomsen), a soldier, apparently returns from the dead. Presumed killed after his helicopter crashed in Afghanistan, he has a dark survivor's tale to tell. But he's too traumatized to confess and, in the meantime, his younger brother Jannik (Nikolaj Lie Kaas) has taken up with Michael's wife (Connie Nielsen). Predictably, the brothers face each other on a powerful, atavistic level. If the later stages of "Brothers" become almost too melodramatic to accept, they are always laced with the high qualities of Dogme 95 filmmaking. At its best, this Danish movement is a fusion of low-tech and high-theatrical purpose, where inspired performances combine with quasi-documentary, emotionally alert camerawork. (PT)

Wilson and Jatna get their strut on in the documentary "Mad Hot Ballroom."

CINDERELLA MAN (PG-13, 144 minutes) Forced to work as a longshoreman to feed his family (including his wife, played by Renee Zellweger) during the Depression, down-and-out boxer Jim Braddock (Russell Crowe) jumps at the chance to take on a heavyweight boxer. When he wins, he faces world champion Max Baer (Craig Bierko). In a way, "Cinderella Man," based on a true story, is "Seabiscuit" in boxing gloves. But there's more to it than that: a Runyonesque glow, thanks to director Ron Howard and screenwriters Cliff Hollingsworth and Akiva Goldsman. Crowe's burly poignancy hits you four-square in the ribs, right above the ticker. The abstract dance between his softness and physical power is the heartbeat of the movie, and it takes you through financial hardship, terrible times and some bloody battles with special grace. (PT)

CRASH (R, 100 minutes) The aftermath of Rodney King and 9/11 seems to sear the nostrils of every Los Angeleno in Paul Haggis' white-knuckle hatefest among characters of almost every ideological, cultural or religious stripe. Asians, Latinos, whites, blacks, rich and poor, Muslim and Christian clash in this multi-character story that features a huge ensemble cast. If "Crash" only showed the dark side of humanity, it would barely be worth bothering. But the movie is also about the best in people. As soon as we think we have some character's number he or she turns around and does something quite astonishing. (PT) on Fortune reporters Bethany McLean and Peter Elkind's "The Smartest Guys in the Room: The Amazing Rise and Scandalous Fall of Enron," Alex Gibney's blow-by-blow documentary retelling of what was, at the time, the largest corporate bankruptcy in history is by turns harrowing and hilarious. And nauseating, too. When you're not aghast at the allegations of misdeeds by Ken Lay, Jeff Skilling and Andy Fastow, or laughing at the sheer chutzpah of what they've been accused of, you might be sickened by reminders that this wasn't a victimless crime, but that thousands of employees and investors lost far more than their shirts. (M)

HITCH (PG-13, 114 minutes) Will Smith ditches his slimy slickster routine as a professional smoothie whose wooing tips are in high demand from the love losers of New York. Smith's Alex "Hitch" Hitchens, scarred from a past dumping and thus a commitment-phobe, gets his comeuppance when he falls for a curvaceous gossip columnist (Eva Mendes) who makes him lose his mojo. The film is flawed but likable, and in the subplot about a 9-to-5 schlub who hires Hitch to help him seduce an heiress (Amber Valletta), Kevin James takes the bitter-sweet ballet of the obese to a painfully hilarious new realm. (SEAN DALY)

THE HITCHHIKER'S GUIDE TO THE GALAXY (PG, 110 minutes) This respectfully amusing movie has Martin Freeman (of the BBC's "The Office") as Arthur Dent, hapless earthling, who, with an alien pal (Mos Def), embarks on a massively epic and wonderfully improbable trip that includes visits to other spaceships and planets. The companions meet a bevy of oddballs, including the two-headed president of the galaxy (Sam Rockwell), the eternally depressed robot Martin (voiced by a hilariously misanthropic Alan Rickman) and a sort of planet construction engineer known as Slartibartfast (Bill Nighy). Given the fact that a quintessentially British franchise has been peopled by both Brits and Americans and spearheaded by a Hollywood studio, the film is more than a pleasant surprise. (DT)

HOUSE OF WAX (R, 105 minutes) In this modern update of the 1953 Vincent Price horror film, a group of friends drives south to watch a college football game. Like most horror characters, they do their best to place themselves in the jaws of danger. In this case, that's a wax museum in a sleepy town where you can check in but you can't check out, at least not without a nice wax finish. There's an escalation of twisted killings, as the owner of that wax house emerges. And look for little sadistic touches here and there. (DT)

THE INTERPRETER (PG-13, 135 min) Sydney Pollack's thriller rides for a long time on a compelling premise: the possibility of an assassination in the United Nations' General Assembly. U.N. interpreter Sylvia Broome (Nicole Kidman) gets wind of a plot to kill an African leader. As a straight-ahead thriller, the movie is enjoyable and stirring much of the time. But Kidman's character is schematically conceived, and Sean Penn's suspicious federal agent makes an interesting but not emotionally involving foil. (DT)

live-action cartoon. Scott and screenwriter William Monahan have assembled a thoughtful, if flawed, antiwar scenario. But the movie is reduced to a backdrop for a boy toy with good hair and excellent backlighting. The real star is Massoud as Saladin, an Islamic hero of deep integrity. To introduce an archetype like this to Western audiences may be worth this whole flawed movie. (DT)

LADIES IN LAVENDER (PG-13, 104 minutes) Maggie Smith and Judi Dench give outstanding performances as lonely sisters who nurse an injured young man (Daniel Bruhl) back to health after he washes up on the shore of their Cornish village in this restrained British melodrama about love and letting go. Directed with a sure hand by actor Charles Dance, who clearly knows that the best way to

way of getting laughs, Will Ferrell manages to come up with a few great comic bits playing the inept coach of a youth soccer team. Ultimately, though, his anarchic genius is wasted in a kiddie comedy in which everybody learns something in the end — about teamwork, about how having fun is more important than winning and about the kind of movie not to put someone in who has Ferrell's slyly subversive humor. (MO)

KINGDOM OF HEAVEN (PG-13, 138 minutes) Ridley Scott's epic, about the battle of wills between Balian of Ibelin (Orlando Bloom), a 12th-century French crusader charged with protecting Jerusalem from Muslim leader Saladin (Ghassan Massoud), is a powerful visual experience. It's also just another digitalized, play a scene is often to underplay it, the film never strays into mawkishness, even as it makes palpable the sisters' pain at the memories of love the stranger's presence dredges up, and the dignity with which they must ultimately accept what they cannot have. (MO)

LAYER CAKE (R, 104 minutes) Smooth businessman X (Daniel Craig) from London thinks he's got the perfect scheme. A rental agent by day and a cocaine and ecstasy manufacturer by night, he believes he can make the illegal drug trade work for him and not the other way around. But he's underestimated the will and onerousness of the gangsters around him. Debuting director Matthew Vaughn, who has produced Guy Ritchie's movies, has made a coolly detached, classic gangster saga about the clashing of rival empires, where the only thing worse than the killer before you is the killer waiting behind him. There's no escape in this world, only moments of personal courage, grace and luck. Ultimately, X realizes luck is the most precious element of all. As X, Craig is a compelling presence, a brilliant, slick opportunist who is rapidly learning that drug dealing, murder, treachery and blackmail are simply occupational hazards in this world. The principal sin is yuppie arrogance. And he's going to be a very lucky man to get out of this thing alive. (DT)

THE LONGEST YARD (PG-13, 114 minutes) This remake of the 1974 comedy-drama about a high-stakes football game between vicious prison guards and a rag-tag team of outmatched inmates benefits most from the smart-alecky wit of Chris Rock and the smirking slacker humor of Adam Sandler as genial convicts, even as it adds little to the original film. Still, the playing out of its predictable formula — is there anyone alive who doubts the outcome of that game? — is not without its rote pleasures. It's like setting up dominoes and watching them fall. There are no surprises, but a certain satisfaction in sticking it to the man — again. (MO)

LOOK AT ME (PG-13, 110 minutes) This

RECKLESS YOUTH: Emile Hirsch, left, as troubled skateboarding genius Jay Adams and Heath Ledger as surf-shop owner Skip Engblom in "Dogtown."

French seriocomic from Agnes Jaoui and Jean-Pierre Bacri is a movie of biting social observation. Lolita Cassard (Marilou Berry), the slightly chubby daughter of Etienne (Bacri), a successful, self-absorbed writer, has a desperate need for her father's approval. Her resentment and heartbreak over this permeates the trenchant film like a mournful song. The characters exude moral three-dimensionality; they're not built to behave or please us. And because of this freedom, we watch with a sort of bemused anxiety, not sure what the next moment will bring. But this uncertainty attunes us to the small, passing graces. (DT)

LORDS OF DOGTOWN (PG-13, 105 minutes) Written by former skateboarder

Stacy Peralta and directed by Catherine Hardwicke of "Thirteen" fame, this fictionalized account of skateboarding's rise in mid-1970s Venice, Calif., is rude, aggressive and disrespectful of authority. It's dirty, loud, randy, obnoxious, destructive and at times clinically insane. In other words, true to its subject matter. But hey, so was the superior 2001 documentary (also by Peralta) "Dogtown and Z-Boys," with the added bonus that the earlier film didn't feel the need to beef up the already inspiring story of gonzo athletic innovation with such melodramatic plot elements as a love triangle, professional rivalries and the bathos of a dying kid. (MO)

MAD HOT BALLROOM (PG, 95 minutes) Marilyn Agrelo's at-times stirring documentary follows groups of young participants in American Ballroom Theater's "Dancing Classrooms" program as they prepare for a climactic dance-off with student ballroom dancers from New York City public schools. It's a lot like "Spellbound," the spelling-bee documentary, in that it has as much to say about the contestants' aspirations and lives as it does about the contest. In the end, it isn't only about the dancing (although there's plenty of that, and it's pretty darn good) as it is about living and growing up. (MO)

MADAGASCAR (PG, 86 minutes) The latest offering from DreamWorks Animation SKG, a tale of cified zoo animals that escape to the wilds of Madagascar from the Central Park Zoo, is high in antic energy and low on charm. Voiced with mostly perfunctory delivery by Ben Stiller, Chris Rock, David Schwimmer and Jada Pinkett Smith, the quartet of, respectively, Alex the lion, Marty the zebra, Melman the giraffe and Gloria the hippo experience a rude awakening when Alex's carnivorous nature puts their friendships at stake. But the story, which attempts to laugh its way out of the fact that some animals eat each other, never really resolves its central conflict, which arises from the inescapable fact that it's a dog-eat-dog world. (MO)

MONSTER-IN-LAW (PG-13, 101 minutes) It doesn't seem right that Jane Fonda, playing the titular harridan, Viola Fields, allows her character, a woman bent on sabotaging the impending nuptials of her doctor son (Michael Vartan) to an impoverished artist (Jennifer Lopez), to be consistently upstaged by her own wisecracking personal assistant (Wanda Sykes). Shouldn't the character of Viola be a scenery-chewing comic shrew? She's not. Just a tiresome and unpleasant woman who could take some tips on how to dish the competition from her smart-mouthed secretary. (MO)

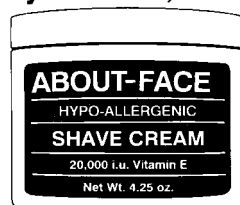

THE PACIFIER (PG, 94 minutes) Muscle-headed actor Vin Diesel gets domestic as a Navy SEAL who must protect a fatherless family from ninja forces bent on finding a special disk in the home. This means — cue canned laughter — Vin dealing with baby vomit, screaming kids and petulant teenags. There's nothing endearing about Diesel, whose woodenness would put Pinocchio to shame. Contains slapstick violence and Vin Diesel. (DT)

ROBOTS (PG, 95 minutes) As a piece of production design, "Robots" is the aces. There's so much to see and plenty of time to see it, because the story won't preoccupy you and the characters have the personalities of toasters. It begins with a delirious concept: a human-free world of machines. The issues in play are planned obsolescence vs. perpetual repair. Big Business prefers the former; the common-man bots prefer the latter. Yes, it's really a movie about can openers with souls who worry about going to can opener retirement villages and living on can opener social security. And if it could be worse, it could be better. (SH)

SAHARA (PG-13, 124 minutes) Indiana Jones, Matthew McConaughey is not. But he has been to the gym. This seems to be the essential glory in this woeful action film. As master explorer Dirk Pitt, he's determined to unearth an ironclad battleship from the Civil War era (Steve Zahn and Penelope Cruz are his sidekicks) that somehow wound up near Africa's Niger River. But he's even more determined to flex his assets and play tough on boats, trains and camels. It's not a movie, it's a training session. (DT)

SIN CITY (R, 126 minutes) You could call this a pure product of the American death cult. It celebrates revenge of the most violent sort, it features heroes who don't merely kill but mutilate and torture enemies, its view of women is primeval. So do you say this film is perverse and should be banned for it will fascinate all the impressionable young with its aggressive nihilism? Or do you say it's so gorgeous and seductive, you just have to let it be what it is? I have no idea. (SH)

THE SISTERHOOD OF THE TRAVELING PANTS (PG, 120 minutes) Four teenage girls. One pair of secondhand jeans that clearly could not possibly fit — but somehow, miraculously, does — four very different sized derrieres. What might have worked on the pages of Ann Brashares' best-selling novel about the life-changing experiences of four friends who share a single pair of pants as an emblem of their friendship emphatically does not in living color. While America Ferrera, Amber Tamblyn, Alexis Bledel and Blake Lively are fine actresses, it's tough to buy the fact that they could all squeeze into the same trousers, let alone that they would be friends with each other. Consisting of the sporty blond sexpot (Lively), an antisocial punk (Tamblyn), volatile Latina (Ferrera) and mousy artist (Bledel), the quartet is more like a group of underage Spice Girls, archetypes rather than real people. (MO)

STAR WARS: EPISODE III — REVENGE OF THE SITH (PG-13, 140 minutes) In this final installment of the "Star Wars" megalogy, we learn about the circumstances that led to the creation of Darth Vader. But this most potentially compelling episode of all is marred by the disappointingly ordinary Hayden Christiansen, whose evolution from Anakin Skywalker to the baddest heavy-breathing villain in sci-fi popular culture amounts to a sort of tizzy fit. It seems he can't get invited to the inner circle of Jedi knights, run by Yoda, Obi-Wan Kenobi (Ewan McGregor), Mace Windu (Samuel L. Jackson) and all, so he joins forces with the Emperor Palpatine (Ian McDiarmid). There are some enjoyable spectacles involving lightsaber battles, but the whole subplot between Anakin and his wife, Padme (Natalie Portman), is dramatically flat. The story shows us nothing we didn't expect. (DT)

UNLEASHED (R, 103 minutes) Marital arts star Jet Li plays Danny, a kind of human pit bull belonging to Bob Hoskins' vicious loan shark in a drama that, despite some spectacularly intense fight sequences, has more conversation than action. Li, who finally took some acting lessons for this film, plays a man who seems, by turns, a short-fused lethal weapon and a vulnerable child. Interestingly, though, it isn't Li's character who saves people here, but who is saved by people. In this case a blind, old piano tuner (Morgan Freeman) and his stepdaughter (Kerry Condon), who take Danny and reshape him into a thoughtful human being. (RICHARD HARRINGTON)

WALK ON WATER (unrated, 94 minutes) The black-and-white moral world of an assassin (Lior Ashkenazi) working for Israel's Mossad intelligence agency starts to look mighty gray when his assignment to terminate a fugitive Nazi leads him to befriend the old man's grandchildren, a young German woman living on a kibbutz and her gay brother. Eytan Fox's film is rich with ideas about what ethical living means, making connections between homophobia, Nazism and the desire for — and spiritual costs of — revenge. (MO)

Harvey Weinstein and brother Bob will release 10 films before the Disney split.

Miramax Dumps Backlog

QUICKTHINKING | Over the next three months, Miramax Films, founded by Bob and Harvey Weinstein, will release seven films that have been gathering dust on the studio's shelves for up to four years.

The release of several of the Miramax movies was held up partially by the very public divorce of the Weinsteins and Disney, which bought the studio in 1993. With the Weinsteins set to leave Disney and Miramax on Sept. 30, the brothers say they are determined before their exit to supervise the debuts of movies they produced and purchased. The Miramax shelf is rarely bare. The studio took nearly four years before releasing 2001's "Prozac Nation," which debuted in March on television. And some Miramax films still remain unaccounted for, including 2002's "Plots With a View," starring Naomi Watts.

The initial results among the new batch of Miramax releases are not encouraging. The Weinsteins purchased the British documentary "Deep Blue" in December 2003.

To improve its commercial prospects, the studio replaced the "Deep Blue" narration by Michael Gambon with a voice-over by Pierce Brosnan. Then it dribbled the film into release. "Deep Blue" debuted in two theaters, grossing a measly $8,373. JOHN HORN (LOS ANGELES TIMES)

A Comic's Serious Turn

George Lopez got a special gift from his wife — her kidney

RECOVERY | "This is a Chicano's worst nightmare," said comedian George Lopez. "Something that makes you owe your wife — forever!"

But seriously, Lopez feels that his wife Ann's life-saving gift of a kidney has allowed him to turn the stereotype of Hispanic machismo on its head.

"After almost dying, man, what are we going to fight over? Not taking out the trash? No, hombre. Especially now after giving me life, it's whatever she wants."

Ann Lopez not only saved her husband and the father of their 9-year-old daughter, Mayan. She also helped spare one of the few successful Hispanic entertainers on the national scene.

Lopez, 44, has a lot to live for. His ABC series, "The George Lopez Show," already the longest-running sitcom with a Hispanic lead character since "I Love Lucy," is being renewed for a fifth season. This week, he debuts in his first major movie role in "The Adventures of Shark Boy and Lava Girl." And he recently set a box-office record with his stand-up act, selling out seven consecutive nights at the Gibson Amphitheatre in Los Angeles.

Lopez was discovered as a comedian by actress-producer Sandra Bullock and cast to star in his own series, 30 years after the late WHOLE AGAIN: The Lopezes see the success of George's show as a boost to Latinos.

Freddie Prinze starred in Norman Lear's "Chico and the Man."

The Lopezes, however, feel the program hasn't received the credit it deserves.

"This is the first sitcom with a Latino family," she said. "Chico was Latino, the Man was not. Ricky Ricardo was Latino, his wife was not. This is groundbreaking, and yet everyone has just kind of ignored it."

Next year, the show moves to a new day and time (Tuesdays at 8:30 p.m.). Keeping to its real-life themes, the show will revisit the topic of kidney disease.

There's also bound to be more bickering between Lopez and his stage wife, also cast as a Cuban American (Constance Marie).

"When you get a Type A Cuban woman together with a little bit of a machismo Mexican guy, there's going to be some fireworks there," said Ann." AGUSTIN GURZA (LOS ANGELES TIMES)

Video Game Voices Cash In

DEALS | Actors who provide the voices for video games would receive 36 percent raises over the next 3 ½ years under tentative agreements reached Wednesday.

Negotiators, though, failed to win the potentially lucrative residual payments like those that television actors receive.

The presidents of the Screen Actors Guild and the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists announced the deals just hours before the unions were to release the results of a strike authorization vote.

The tentative agreements now must be approved by the organizations' national committees.

"We will spend the next 3½ years devoting resources to further organize this industry and return to the bargaining table with renewed strength and vigor to establish a fair participation in the enormous profits generated by video games," SAG President Melissa Gilbert said.

Game producers had balked at providing residuals, arguing that people don't buy games because of the actors who appear in them.

Under terms of the deals, video actors will receive 25 percent raises effective July 1, increasing minimum four-hour session payments for those voicing three or more characters from $556 to $695. The rest of the increase will come over the HOT TIMES: MTV is branching out. The Viacom-owned network announced it plans to launch a channel devoted to Caribbean music and culture. It will be called Tempo and plans to begin shaking its booty sinuously in North America by 2006.

ON TV THIS WEEKEND

BIG, BIG, BIG SKY

INTO THE WEST (8 p.m., TNT) The six-week epic miniseries produced by Steven Spielberg covers the settling of the region from the point of view of European explorers, trappers, ranchers and farmers, as well as the Native Americans they displaced. At its best, "Into the West" is a feast for the eyes, but like too many epics, "West" is heavier on message and metaphor than satisfying character development.

CHAINED TO HER DESK

SECRETARY (Sat., 9 p.m., Oxygen) Looking for something that's definitely not for the kids? Maggie Gyllenhaal stars in the 2002 black comedy as an emotionally fragile woman who finds refuge in her work at a small law firm as her attraction to her boss (James Spader) takes a startling turn.

WHILE NETWORKS SLEEP, CABLE SWOOPS IN

Three durable cable dramas open new seasons. Anthony Michael Hall returns for a fourth season of THE DEAD ZONE (Sun., 10 p.m., USA). "Zone" follows up on last season's cliffhanger with Johnny (Hall) battling fate to keep Rebecca from killing Stinson.

MISSING (Sun., 10 p.m., Lifetime), starring Vivica A. Fox and Caterina Scorsone, begins its third season of extra-sensory police work. Lori Loughlin guest stars in a two-episode opener.

Rick Schroder joins the cast of the medical drama STRONG MEDICINE (Sun., 9 p.m., Lifetime) as a woman's health specialist.

SURE, THERE WAS HEARTACHE, BUT THE SONGS WERE GREAT CLASS OF 1975 (8 p.m., CMT) looks at the D-I-V-O-R-C-E of Tammy Wynette and George Jones and the making of Robert Altman's sprawling film "Nashville."

RATINGS ROADKILL FUR ON THE ASPHALT: THE GREG THE BUNNY REUNION SPECIAL (10:30 p.m., Independent Film Channel). Dysfunctional puppets look back at their glory days on a wonderful, if short-lived, Fox sitcom.

THERE IS NO 'I' IN 'SKATING'

GO FIGURE (8 p.m., Disney) A skater learns that some stars shine more brightly when they cooperate with their team in this drama for kids.

DISNEY LOSES ITS SWING

TARZAN (Sat., 8 p.m., ABC) While a box-office hit, this Disney film disappointed many and began a long, steady decline for the popular genre that reached its apex with 1991's "Beauty and the Beast."

'FEED ME, BIG DUMB HUMAN'

JANE GOODALL'S WHEN ANIMALS TALK (Sun., 8 p.m., Animal Planet) explores the ways, both verbal and telepathic, in which pets and humans really communicate.

PRESERVING THE PAST

Omar Sharif narrates THE SEARCH FOR ETERNAL EGYPT (Sun., 7 p.m., History), which explores the effort to uncover Egypt's ancient wonders and efforts to protect its legacy from plundering trea-

Google is being used to transform data into clickable maps

Tracking sexual predators. Guiding travelers to the cheapest gas. Pinpointing apartments for rent.

Innovators are crashing the Google party, having discovered how to tinker with the search engine's mapping service to graphically illustrate information that might otherwise be ignored or overlooked. "It's such a beautiful way to look at what could be a dense amount of information," said Tara Calishain, editor of Research Buzz.

Yahoo and other sites also offer maps, but Google's four-month-old mapping service is more easily accessible and manipulated by outsiders, the tinkerers say.

Google charts each point on its maps by latitude and longitude. Developers have figured out how to match these points to locations from outside databases with information on everything from police blotters to real estate listings.

Thanks to Adrian Holovaty, who overlaid Chicago Police Department crime statistics on a Google map, house-hunters in the Albany Park neighborhood can pinpoint all the sexual assaults in the district between May 19 and April 19 on a single map. With each marked by a virtual pushpin, Chicagoans can quickly learn what train stations, pool rooms and alleys to avoid.

Activist James Cappleman is impressed with Holovaty's with data on convicted sex offenders, shows the name, last known address and mug shot of each offender. Drivers can find the cheapest gas stations at www.ahding.com/cheapgas, which connects Google Maps and Gasbuddy.com's gas-price database. Home buyers can pinpoint houses in their price range at Cytadia.com; and renters can turn to Housingmaps.com, which melds Craigslist and Google to map available housing in 29 cities, including San Francisco, New York, Los Angeles and Chicago.

Before finding Housingmaps.com, Kenneth Tan spent up to 30 minutes a day reading Craigslist postings, trying to find a place to live in New York. On Housingmaps.com, the listings in his desired area are represented on a single map. One click sends Tan directly into the Craigslist posting. "It takes two seconds to glance at the map to see if there is anything for me that day," Tan said.

Now, more people are looking at Google maps as an easy way to show data visually. For example, San Francisco is among cities interested in develop crime-mapping sites, Holovaty said.

"The world is a better place whenever you provide more information," he said. GREG SANDOVAL (AP)

Gene Kelly

Filmmaker ROBERT TRACHTENBERG was online Thursday to discuss the PBS documentary "Gene Kelly: Anatomy of a Dancer" | washingtonpost.com/liveonline

I heard that Kelly did his famous "Singing in the Rain" number with a high fever.

It is true. He was very sick the day that they shot it. But he kept working. Obviously he had pre-recorded the song, but he did have to do the harder part, which is the dance. Back then there was no such thing as microfibers, and he was soaked and feverish and wearing wet wool. So it makes it even more admirable.

How would you rate his work as a director on "Hello, Dolly!" As beautiful as the film looked, I thought the pace dragged.

I don't think his strong suit was as a director. With all the admiration and respect I have for him, his best directorial efforts were the films he co-directed with Stanley Donen.

The one time Fred Astaire and Kelly danced together on film (I can't remember the name of the movie) the result was a rather flat performance by both. Any idea why?

The name of the film is "Ziegfeld Follies." I think everyone has different opinions about that number. Some like it, some don't.

I think it really points out that in deference to one another, they didn't want to "step on each other's toes" — no pun intended! So what ended up was neither Astaire's vision nor Kelly's vision. They ended up in the middle and that's what you see.

I have always been impressed with Kelly's physical condition for a movie star. Do you know anything about his fitness/exercise regimen?

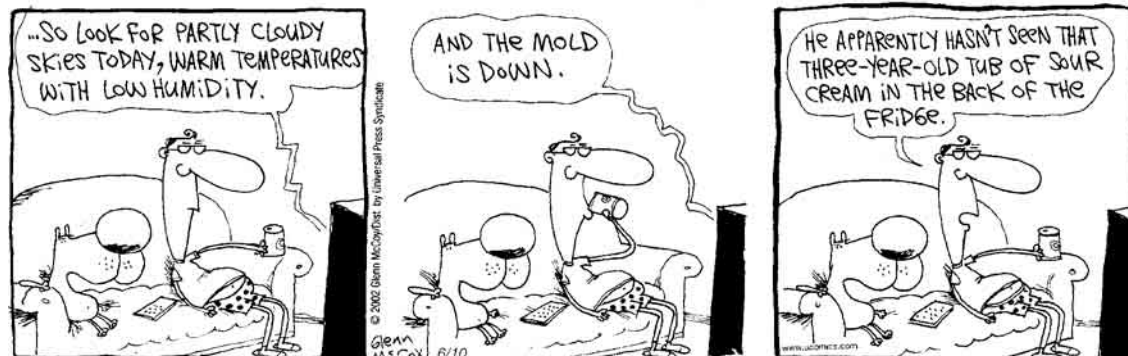

I do know this, which was great to hear: When he wasn't making a film, when he was between films, he let himself go to hell. He knew when his start date was and he started back to work and went into rehearsal which took the weight off right away.

I think even Olympic athletes, when they're done with competition, slack off a little.

WHEN EXACTLY would Thursday's letter writer like Metro to provide maintenance on its subway system? He has ruled out every time the system is open, including off-peak times like weekends. A quick trip online would probably tell riders where and how much delay to expect during track maintenance. We won't even talk about the station canopies — they should have been part of the original design years ago, given the weather. Metro is still cheaper and more reliable than driving. If there is an accident ahead of you, it is almost guaranteed you will be late to work.

Lucas Accepts Self as the One-of-a-Kind Genius He Is GEORGE LUCAS figures this is the ideal time to receive the American Film Institute's life-achievement award.

AFI actually approached him a decade ago about the career prize, said Lucas, who just turned 61.

"I said, 'You know, I'm too young. Look, I'm not ready yet,'" Lucas said. "Then they came back again, and I said, 'Look, wait until I'm over 60. Then I'll do it.' As soon as I turned 60, they called me." (AP)

Horoscope

By Stella Wilder

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You're willing to explore things with more gusto — though one or two developments may scare you off temporarily.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You're more interested in friendship than in love. Complications may find you recoiling back into your shell if you're not careful.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you insist on going it alone, be willing to make certain concessions in the name of safety. You don't want to risk too much.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You may be particularly vulnerable to one who knows your weak points intimately. Flattery, too, may affect you more than usual.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You may be thin-skinned; steer clear of people and situations that you know will present challenges to your feelings.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) Though some may think you are hard to understand, someone close to you knows what makes you tick. Stay close to home.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) You may be sought out by others simply by virtue of your patience and honesty — both of which will prove widely valuable.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your easy-going approach is favored; don't come on too strong or you are likely to be challenged head-on and disappointed.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You're in the mood to take a risk or two — and, right now, you may be able to afford it. Get ready — you may well hit the jackpot.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Keep your vanity in check; it's more important to think and work for others than to concentrate on your own appearance and image.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You've been wearing your heart on your sleeve lately. Start protecting yourself a little more carefully.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If things get boring, you have no one to blame but yourself. Whether you know it or not, you are firmly in control.
